Rewrite the sentence below, adding a 'where the action took place' fronted adverbial.

The killer whales and dolphins were hunting together.

Example: Miles from shore, the killer whales and dolphins were hunting together.

Did You Know?

Off the coast of New Zealand, false killer whales and dolphins often work together to gather small fish into gigantic 'bait balls', trapping them against the surface of the ocean. These skilled hunters patiently wait for larger fish to arrive on the scene before going in for the kill. It's amazing how two very different species can work so well together towards a common goal!
